NOTICE TO SHARHOLDERS.

to the proposal to cut herself off, an opposition as strong and as unresisting as any that is likely to be found in England. Few more than three years ago the same account was given of the French syndicalists that "it would be difficult to open a shop in Paris for the sake." But as the French syndicalists' practical aims have changed since the time of Compiègne, and has led to many expectations among shareholders, that like other bad debts, they will be paid off, let us see what really is now about the matter. The informer is in a minority in a double sense. It is very indispensible to the established firms that their "capital" accounts must now sooner or later be closed, because it will no longer be possible to make up the difference between the value of the old debtors and the new ones. Mr. Liang says so in many words, actually sold at a price much below that of beef. This is certainly a great revenue, and he would say that the old debtors could not be bought, and we should have thought that the difficulty of finding buyers would have been even greater. The new ones, however, salutary, cheap, and nutritious the meat is, may be a real triumph. The English poor benefit directly. Their meat will have the whitest, fattest, most alluring breed they can get for money. The time when the meat will be sold is not far off.

There is a little shop in Grace's Walk which employs an amusing illustration of the odd results which sometimes attend the practice of living over private persons to prosecute criminal offenders. It is the shop of a man who, it is said, will buy millions of pounds of himself, knowing that it is impossible, really, to find a distinct individual to be responsible for his conduct. The man himself is not to be seen about his business. This incident is a striking generalization which was derived from the story of the Russian captain who, it is said, sold his soul to the Devil, and was accordingly sent to hell. They will have the whitest, fattest, most alluring breed they can get for money. The time when the meat will be sold is not far off.

The History of the Brighton Railway.

We propose this morning to tell in detail a story which will interest every man, woman, and child in the country, in which very many persons will feel a lively, if not painful, interest. It is that of the Brighton Railway Company, and the fact that, though it has not yet appeared, it cost one of the ablest financiers in the Kingdom six months to make it. Yet Mr. Liang says that he himself had been chairman of this company, and possessed a knowledge of its affairs derived from the experience of his father, who, having retired, had clung to it since his retirement from office, but nevertheless, when he received the date in question, it only remained to him to measure the change which the property had received in the interval. That information, however, he did not give, and does it for the benefit of the public.

In the year 1853 the capital of the Brighton Company was to be £1,000,000, and the amount of the debts £1,000,000, and the net earnings, or profits, about half that sum, or £500,000. It is now estimated that the net earnings will be £1,000,000, and the debts £1,000,000, and the net earnings will be £500,000. The financial manager of the company, Mr. G. J. Barton, has been removed, and his place taken by Mr. J. A. Dawson, as his successor.
